HE HAD TO STRIKE BACKWARD

Darkey Bound to Yield to Labor Movement But Was Getting Enough Wages.

"I keep a colored man around the house who waits on the table and does various things," said the lawyer.

"Up to a year ago he was getting $25 a month. Then he came to me one day and said he must have more money or he would strike. We talked it over and settled on $28 a month. He has got along at that figure ever since until the other day, when he walked in on me and said:

"Mistah Blank, I see sure got to go on strike dis time."

"But I thought you were satisfied, Robert," I replied.

"No, sah—no, sah. I hain't dum satisfied."

"Well, how much do you want?"

"I don't want any mo', sah."

"Then, what's the trouble?"

"De trouble am, sah, dat de strike business am in de air all round me, an' I's got to strike or bust."

"Are you going to leave?"

"No, sah."

"But you want more money?"

"No, sah."

"Well, what then?"

"A year ago, sah, I struck ford's fur $28. Now I see gwine to strike backwards for de same old $25. Sorry, sah, but I must dun strike or dese white folks 'round yere will think I'm jest common trash and hev no respect for me!"

Long Overland Journey.

A strenuous overland journey has just been completed by Mrs. Sarah Conner and her four small children, who, after a trip in a dilapidated buggy of 900 miles, have arrived at Wheeler, S. D., their destination. Mrs. Conner and her children commenced their journey at Moose Jaw, Canada, following the death of her husband, who left them in a destitute condition. Their nearest relative resided at Wheeler, in South Dakota. A span of ponies were hitched to a single seated top buggy, which contained the mother and her four children, one a girl of eleven, a boy of nine, a girl of seven and a baby of eighteen months. In the old buggy were piled the worldly possessions of the family. The journey required six weeks' time. Some days they were unable to travel more than fifteen miles. The two older children, and part of the time three of them, walked while the mother drove. The ponies had only such grazing as they could find along the road and were without grain the entire trip. They were nearly exhausted at the end of the journey.

The Tariff.

The word "tariff" traces itself back to Tarifa, a Moorish name for a fortress on a southern promontory of Spain, running into the Straits of Gibraltar, and commanding the entrance to the Mediterranean. From this Tarifa the Moors, during their dominion in Spain, were wont to watch the merchant ships of the nations as they passed into or out of the Mediterranean, and, making a tally therefrom, used to levy duty on the merchandise carried by the ships. It was from this practice that the application of the word came into use.

Ladies Object to Profanity.

The woman golfers of New York have made objections to swearing on the links and have discussed the matter in their clubs. The men who play over the links are all supposed to be gentlemen, but sometimes they are not careful of their language, and ladies have been made very indignant by some speeches. It has been suggested that notices be placed in the clubhouse, but the fact that the ladies have discussed the subject will, no doubt, be all that is necessary.

CIVIC CLUB WOMEN IN WARD MEETINGS

Important Sessions Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon at Three O'clock.

The ward meetings for the purpose of forming a permanent Civic Improvement club will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 20, at three o'clock.

The first ward meeting will be held in the Washington school, the second in the Adams school, the third in the Jefferson school, the fourth in the Garfield school, and the fifth ward meeting in the Lincoln school.

All these meetings there will be a brief address telling what has been accomplished by similar organizations in other cities and what it is hoped to accomplish in Janesville, and a vice president will be chosen to represent her ward on a nominating committee at the general meeting to be held about a week later in the city hall.

All the women of the city are invited and urged to be present and suggestions for the club's work are solicited. Such suggestions may be given orally, or written and handed to the chairman or any member of the committee in each ward.

LINK AND PIN

Chicago and Northwestern.

The largest force of men that have been employed during the year are being put to work on the rapid car work on the rip track in preparation for freight cars for winter hauling. There will be a great deal of rush work during the next two weeks to prepare the cars to carry the grain from the Northwestern states to the markets.

Every morning there are about thirty to a hundred of bad order cars on the rip track for repairs and up to the present date the force has proven too small to meet with the demands. Coal gondolas are also in great demand.

Reports from Clinton, Iowa, report that the company is rushing the work on the new Northwestern shops on Camanche avenue and the round house is about completed. Concrete foundations for the machinery has been laid and the machinery is being rapidly installed. A new plan is to be followed out in this roundhouse in that there will be a track running the entire length of the shop and to contain all the steam pipes and conduits for the entire shops.

T. J. Stocks has returned from a two weeks' vacation trip at the DeWitts, Wisconsin.

Engineer Bler and Achley, are on the night switch engine job.

Fireman Lewis is laying off and Fireman Lindley is relieving him.

Engineer McNarrow and Fireman Mathewson went out on the 5:45 extra.

Engineer Martin and Fireman Barker are scheduled on train number 587.

The safety committee leaves for their monthly meeting at Chicago on the twenty-seventh.

Garbutt and Theisler went on the new run to Fond du Lac on train 29 at 6:50.

Engineer Britton and Fireman Ancher went out on 512 to Elroy at 4:15.

Engineer Agenten and "Gash" Gosselin were sent out on 391 with engine 1392.

Fireman Cortney is on the extra list.

Engineer Schaffer and Yates are on the bunk car job or the "Sunset Limited."

Mystery prevails around the shop at the present time and everybody is asking everybody else, "who stole James Cummings' soap?" While Ma-jinist Cummings was taking the sweat of honest toil off at the sink several days ago he happened to turn his back for a moment and when he beheld his soap had taken wings and disappeared in the thin air. There was no one in the vicinity of the sink at the time and it will take a modern Holmes or a Burns to find out who stole the soap. Mr. Cummings is still hoping the guilty party will repent his deed and return him his cake of soap.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Jeanette Kimball. Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Jeanette Kimball were held from the home, 170 Locust street, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The Reverend C. J. Roberts of the United Brethren church officiated in the absence from the city of the Reverend J. C. Hazen.

Mrs. Kimball was born in Avoca, New York, December 10, 1840, and was married to M. E. Kimball about forty-five years ago. He has been dead twenty-nine years. Mrs. Kimball came to Janesville with her parents when a young girl and to Janesville about fifteen years ago. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Bertha Kimball, a brother, Samuel Bullock, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ella Lockhart of Fairbury, Nebraska, who was at her mother's bedside when she passed away. Mrs. Kimball had been sick for four years. Last Saturday spinal meningitis set in and it was the immediate cause of her death. She was a member of the Baptist church, its aid society, the W. C. T. U. and Rebekah lodge No. 26.

Mrs. Alice Call. Mrs. Alice Call, born in New York state in 1843, she died on August 18th at Mercy hospital Janesville, and had been seriously ill for a week. She was operated on Saturday by Dr. Glenn of Chicago, as a last resort. The operation proved successful, but her weakened condition and advanced age was against her, and the third day she passed away. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Riley Call, who is in very poor health, one daughter, Mrs. Hattie Stewart of this city, five grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren.

The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. A. W. Depew of Forrest, Ill., at her home at Milton Junction, Thursday at 10:00 a. m. Burial will be at Edgerton.

Mrs. Call was a woman greatly beloved by all and her sudden death will prove a great shock to her many friends. She was generous to a fault, and in time of sickness or trouble her willing hands were ever ready to assist. She and her husband are members of the M. E. church at Edgerton, and have many friends there who will sympathize with him in his bereavement.

Mrs. Barbara Banker. Funeral services for the late Mrs. Barbara Banker were held this afternoon at the Oak Hill chapel at 2 o'clock. Rev. T. D. Williams of the Methodist church officiating. The pallbearers were six sons of the deceased. They were Frank, Henry, William, George, Charles and Charles Lufelt. Interment was at Oak Hill cemetery.

DECREASE IS SHOWN BY SCHOOL CENSUS

Janesville Has Thirty-one Fewer Children of School Age Than Were Registered Last Year.

Janesville has shared with the other cities of the state in the falling off in the number of children of school age, according to the report of S. C. Burnham, clerk of the board of education. Last year the total number was 3,837; this year it is 3,806—thirty-one less. Of the total number enrolled 1,851 are boys and 1,955 girls. All children between the ages of four and nineteen, inclusive, are considered of school age. Mr. Burnham has not completed classifying the census returns, a task which requires infinite pains and a great deal of time.

The decrease in the number of children of school age was much more pronounced in Deloit than in this city, being not less than 44. In this case had a falling off twenty-four per cent. Fond du Lac experienced a gain of 234 pupils.

WM. WALKER RESIGNS AS TURNKEY AT JAIL

Sheriff Whipple Announces Appointment of W. R. Wogan, Experienced Officer, As His Successor.

William A. Walker, turnkey under Sheriff Whipple since the 1st of January, has resigned his position according to an announcement made this morning. His successor will be W. R. Wogan for several years a patrolman on the Deloit police force and formerly city marshal at Burlington, Wis. Mr. Wogan, who will also be a deputy sheriff, began his duties.

"While I regret very much to lose the services of my brother-in-law, Mr. Walker, as turnkey," said Sheriff Whipple, "I feel fortunate in securing a man of Mr. Wogan's experience to succeed him. I am confident that he will work with me and that his assistance will be most valuable."

Mr. Walker has had his resignation under consideration for some time, but he is considering locating in Montana where several of his sons reside.

GEORGE DECKER ARRIVES WITH FIRST 1914 OVERLAND

Left Milwaukee This Afternoon and Will Reach Janesville This Evening At Eight.

Geo. Decker, of the Janesville Motor Company, telephoned from Milwaukee this afternoon that he had started with the first Nineteen-Fourteen model of the Overland and would arrive in Janesville this evening by eight. Mr. Decker is accompanied by a party of friends.

Recent Explanation of Psychologist Causes Much Merriment Among Some Medical Men.

The most recent explanation of right-handedness, by a psychologist, is exciting some merriment among medical men. He supposes the human body to have unexplained polar properties, somewhat like those of a magnet, the right side being always "positive" and the left "negative."

The most rational explanation would seem to be that which accounts for right and left handedness by the position of the heart. The shield would naturally be held in the left hand to protect this vital organ, so that the active work would fall to the right hand. Those who maintain that acquired characteristics cannot be inherited will desire to have this expressed somewhat differently. According to them the positions of spear and shield were at first a matter of individual choice, but those who held the shield in the right hand, leaving the heart exposed, were more frequently killed, so that by natural selection the right hand spear holders ultimately survived and propagated their peculiarity. In this case, it will be noticed, the inherited characteristic is not acquired, but existed in the warrior at birth. The difference may not seem worth quarrelling about, but it measures the whole distance between the followers of Darwin and those of Lamarck. At any rate, the hypothesis, in which ever form it is put, seems eminently reasonable, whereas talk about "polarity" would appear to be mostly verbiage.

JUDGE CHANGED HIS MIND

Chico Kid of New Mexico Did Not Propose to Have a Fine Imposed.

Broadway heard with some surprise that H. A. Du Souchet, the author of "The Man From Mexico," is a candidate for justice of the peace in the hamlet in which he pays taxes in New Jersey. Why he should want to be a Jersey justice has the big street guessing. The obverse of the proposition is the wonder why Jersey should want him to be a justice.

"Away back in 1878," said one of the old-timers, "Du Souchet was a justice of the peace down on the New Mexico line. In those days tarantulas and Indians were the chief native products of that region. Residents wore their guns handy, and train robbery was considered a profitable and not discreditable form of speculation. One day the Chico Kid, being very drunk, insisted on being arrested. The marshal didn't want to arrest Mr. Kid, but the latter insisted.

"I wanna plead guilty to drunkenness and disturbin' thuh peace," said the Kid to Justice Du Souchet.

"I will have to fine—" began Du Souchet.

"What?" howled the Kid. "Fine me? Why, you pin eared, yaller livered, pigeon toed ole maverick, there ain't enough justices in New Mexico to make me pay a fine. I—"

"But Justice Du Souchet interrupted him urbanely.

"I was about to say," said he, "that I will have to fine you, Mr. Kid. In the meantime, suppose we go and have a drink."—New York Letter to the Cincinnati Times-Star.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PASQUAL TERTIENE

PASQUAL.

Pasqual was war-chief of the Yuma Indians (who called themselves "Sons of the River.") The Yuma river, for much of its course, runs through a desert. Vegetation (before irrigating ditches were made) was once to be found only along the river banks. On these banks the Yuma savages lived. For to venture far into the desert was to court starvation.

Yet the desert trails and hiding places were known to the Yumas, and the sands were often reddened with their battles. Pasqual—typical desert warrior, gigantic in height, thin, wiry, stolid—knew every inch of the sand wastes and each strategic advantage offered by them. His father was a chief, and was killed in battle against the Tonto Indians on the Gila river early in the nineteenth century. Pasqual was chosen in the dead leader's place as Sachem and war-chief of the Yumas.

Then came the Mexican war. And in its wake came soldiers and white settlers. California was conquered and an era of bustling progress set in. The land on both sides of the Colorado river was invaded by the home-seeking frontiersmen.

Arrow Versus Rifle Bullet.

Pasqual had no idea of letting the white man steal the most fertile parts of his wide domain. So quarrels sprang up between settlers and savages. And, as usual, the pioneers sent a call for help to the soldiers.

Accordingly, in 1848, Capt. Heintzelman (later a general in the civil war) was sent with a force of troops to overawe the Yumas. The conflicts that followed were terribly unequal. The troops were well-trained veterans, armed with the latest and best guns and carrying cannon as well; Pasqual understood only Indian warfare, and his wild warriors had no weapons except their bows, arrows and native spears.

Yet the splendid generalship of Pasqual and the fierce courage of his Yuma braves almost made up for these defects. In fight after fight Pasqual hurled his red legions upon the advancing white men with such reckless fury that the far better equipped soldiers were driven back before the hail of native arrows. For a time primitive savagery threatened to block the path of progress, and the old time arrow seemed to hold its own against the modern rifle bullet and cannon ball.

Yet in the end, of course, the government forces triumphed. In the skirmishes the troops made but a poor showing against the horde of fearless, gigantic Yumas; but musket and cannon in open field engagements left only one result possible.

The Yumas were mowed down like grain. Their ranks were steadily thinning, while there were always new men capable of taking the place of fallen soldiers. Pasqual was at last forced to give up the one-sided struggle.

The desert warrior was obliged, for his people's sake, to lay aside his weapons and teach his braves to become farmers, traders, etc. As settlers and nearby Mexicans cheated them and undersold them, the Yumas yearly grew poorer. At length, cooped into their barren reservation, they became a ragged, miserable gypsy-like crew.

A Savage's Odd Journey.

When he was ninety-four years old Pasqual journeyed to San Francisco to plead for his people's betterment. It was his first visit to a large city. The populace gazed in wonder at the solemn, shriveled old giant who stalked in wonder at theisats landlawaypyoed so unconcernedly through the roar of traffic and through a bewildering succession of sights that must have seemed stranger to him than would a visit to Mars to most people. Riding on the cable cars was the one pastime that seemed to excite his wonder.

The war chief, who had once claimed nearly half a continent as his kingdom, passed his declining days in a poverty more squalid than that of any eastern beggar.

Told of Dr. Wiley.

Soon after the president's order was issued to the effect that no information was to be given a congressman by any employee of the government, and only heads of the departments could furnish information, Dr. Wiley met a member of congress.

"Good morning, doctor; how are you this morning?" was the greeting.

"I can't tell you," promptly responded the doctor; "you'll have to ask the secretary."

One of the best examples of his quickness of repartee is the exclusive property of the women of the bureau of chemistry.

They all call him "the Big Chief." Once a petite young woman of the bureau met the doctor as he was passing along the corridor to his office.

"Good morning, Big Chief," she said.

"Good morning, Little Mis-Chief," retorted the doctor.

Hypnotic Speaker.

"Would you prefer to take my speech in shorthand," said Senator Sorghum, "or directly on the typewriter?"

"If it's all the same," replied the stenographer, "I'll take it directly on the typewriter. The noise of the machine will help to keep me awake."

MISS TRIPKE BECAME BRIDE LAST EVENING

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tripke of Center is Married to Robert McCoy in Pretty Ceremony.

(SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.)

Cainville Center, Aug. 19.—Last evening at seven o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tripke of the town of Center, occurred a very pretty wedding, in which a daughter, Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert McCoy of the town of West Magnolia. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Arnold of Magnolia. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McCoy of West Magnolia and is prominent in social circles throughout the city. The attendants at the ceremony were: Miss Lucella Tripke, a sister of the bride, and Burchard McCoy, a brother of the groom. Following the wedding a luncheon was served. The happy couple left for a two weeks' wedding trip throughout the state, where they will visit with relatives. They will be at their home after September 1st, at Evansville, where Mr. McCoy is employed at the Baker Manufacturing company of that city.

Sports Snap-Shots

Those Englishmen who have been poking fun at us because of the slang we use in reporting our baseball games should now become confused and hang their heads for shame. We have found them out. They use just as much slang in reporting their cricket games as we do in writing up our baseball contests. Just read this description of a recent cricket game, which appeared in the London Sphere:

"That bat must have come forward crooked and it is not surprising to see the leg stump turning cartwheels. The best ball sent down in the match. It started well outside the off stump, swerved inwards late in its flight, and fairly fizzed off the pitch in its new direction. Amory got most of his runs by bending the ball to the boundary in front of square leg, and he was not a bit particular about the line on which the ball was pitched. Several went from outside off stump, but this one pitched on his pads. Oates, behind the wicket, jumped to the leg side to save the possible bye. Eventually Amory tried one cow shot too many and the middle stump went for a walk."

Reb Russell, the dangerous young twirler of the Chicago White Sox, engaged in a hot argument the other day concerning the ability of pitchers to hit. According to the young Texan, he fears the ordinary twirler up at bat as much as any other man on the team.

"I've found it true you have to curve the ball to a pitcher the same as the fast straight one in the hope of fooling him and he'll frequently hit it a mile. In pitching I work the same against the pitchers as the others. I don't believe in taking any chances with them."

Although he don't mention the fact, Russell himself is a dangerous batter and many times this season has demonstrated the truth of his own remarks by snapping out a hit when it's needed.

When you start talking about me-

TO BATTLE FOR NATIONAL ARCHERY CHAMPIONSHIP

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Boston, Mass., Aug. 14.—During the remainder of this week there will be much drawing of the long bow at Soldiers Field, the athletic grounds of Harvard University. The occasion will be the National Archery Association's thirty-fifth annual championship teoric careers don't forget to mention little Fritz Maisel, whose sale by the Baltimore Orioles to the New York Americans the other day has made baseball history. Picked up from the sand lots of Baltimore three years ago Maisel has become one of the finest infielders ever developed in the international league. In the American circuit he is expected to be a regular sensation. Like lightning on the bases, little Fritz has brought terror to the hearts of the catchers of the Barrow organization for the last two years, and they probably will not be sorry to see him go. Maisel has a batting record, too. His average this year has been .230. Besides that he's been the season's best base stealer. He is a wonderful thrower and is a fearless fielder of sharp hit grounders.

There is really very little difference between a tail end and a champion club in the major leagues, rises a well known sport writer to remark the actual differences is largely one of "punch." Between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns for instance, there is really not a great fixed gulf as appears in the popular imagination. The men who are now playing on the Browns were every bit as good in the minors as were the men now with the Athletics. Stovall's players, comparatively speaking, play good and even great base ball. If someone could give them the needed "punch" they would make fan dom at large sit up and take notice.

Derrell Pratt is said to be hanging to his job with the St. Louis Browns by just a single hair. The trouble with him is that although he's a dandy hitter, he's poor at his job in the infield. Johnnie Lavens, the Michigan infielder, annexed by Stovall earlier in the year, has been benched. The trouble with him is that although he's a dandy infielder, he can't hit. If Pratt and Lavens could somehow be rolled into one, everybody would be happy.

BIG JEFF TESREAU DISAPPOINTS GIANTS

Jeff Tesreau.

Big Jeff Tesreau, twirler for the New York Giants, is proving something of a disappointment this season. After his brilliant work during the closing weeks of the 1912 season it was expected that this year he would make one of the best records in the league. Yet he has found it hard work to win more than half his games, despite the excellent support given him. He has a batting average of .230.

Friday of this week. The Footville Sox are quite confident of carrying away both games, as Tilley is expected to work for them in one of the games.

On Sunday afternoon at the Driving Park, the Cards will make an attempt to down the fourth Rockford nine, which have not invaded this city, so far this season. The Cards have defeated the Orioles, Dr. Peppers and the Highlanders, all Rockford nines. Both these games promise to be whirlwinds. Butters and Crandall will twirl.

GOLFERS START PLAY FOR H. MORGAN CUP

THE CRISIS.

It would appear that Huerta has become emboldened and would now defy the United States to do its worst. News which comes over the telegraph wires from this sister republic would indicate that the American interference as suggested by President Wilson was not welcome. It would seem that Lind's mission to Mexico was a failure. That the head of the present government in Mexico City believes he is bigger than the nation to the north of the Rio Grande and the world waits the next move. Be it peace or war. That is the question asked. For years the officers of our standing army have boasted, "To the next war with Mexico," and perhaps this toast is to be realized. It is possible that armed intervention must come. It is possible that the powers at Washington will find that grape juice, with a dash of orange on the side, is not the true solution of the serious problem. It is unfortunate the crisis has come just at this time. It may be averted. Today's dispatches state that Lind has been successful, that no ultimatum has been issued, but still the situation is still tense and the outcome is doubtful. Peace is to be hoped for but if war must come let the United States do its duty. However, more flies can be caught with syrup than vinegar, so a peaceful solution may end it all after all.

UP TO GOVERNOR.

The sad death of Judge John W. Sale leaves a vacancy in the county judgeship. In view of the fact that Judge Charles F. Field is judge-elect of this court it is probable that he will be named to fill out the unexpired term until January 1, next. This will leave the municipal judgeship vacant and Governor McGovern must name his successor at once. It was learned from Madison today he would not make his selection until Wednesday. There are four candidates for the office and it is to be hoped that the governor will use his judgment in selecting the one of the four best qualified for the office and not be guided by political preference or insinuation that one of the candidates is a much abused person and deserves the office for the reason he has stood for the masses against capital. It is an important office to fill and one that needs a man with good judgment, well equipped with legal knowledge. Care should be taken in the selection of such a man and no snap judgment should influence the governor in the case.

PARTITION OF ASIA.

The Christian Science Monitor discusses the proposed partition of Asia in the following language: "For something like three centuries the European nations have been sitting round the 'Sick Man' at Constantinople, speculating on their share of the inheritance. When the final coup de grace was given, however, to the Ottoman empire west of the Bosphorus, it was the servants in the house, in the shape of Bulgarians and Servians, Greeks and Montenegrins, who a few decades had been mere hewers of wood and drawers of water for innumerable pashas, who succeeded to the inheritance. The great powers looked a little askance. Austria-Hungary had as good as counted on Salonika, Italy had always reckoned on Valona, and for Russia there was the Golden Horn. Here then were all these territories slipping away, or threatening to slip away, into the pockets of people who a generation ago supplied soldiers for the armies of the Calif and taxes for the support of the Yildiz Kiosk. Then it was that the great powers beought themselves that there was still an Ottoman empire east of the Bosphorus.

"It has been said that to an Amurath an Amurath succeeds, and that interesting proverb applies to more things than one in the Ottoman empire. Europe without a Turkish question would hardly feel herself, and so already the chancelleries are turning their attention to Anatolia instead of Serbia, and to Syria instead of Servia. The natural riches of Asia Minor are understood to be untold. What a port like Smyrna is capable of becoming in the hands of a power like Germany, it would be impossible to say. Ephesus might regain its old glories, and the argosies, albeit steel ones, might be seen once more at Trebizond, whilst the riches of the Lebanon might be shipped again from Beirut. The consequence is that the somewhat indecent spectacle is being witnessed of the great powers pegging out their claims, from Sinope to Damascus, and from the Dardanelles to the Euphrates.

"France, of course, has always exercised a certain influence and demanded a voice in the affairs of Syria proper. The United Kingdom, in possession of Cyprus, has kept watch pretty closely over the Euphrates valley and the head of the Persian gulf. In later times, Germany has had much to say, largely through her political influence which dominated Constantinople in the days of Marschall von Bieberstein. But now suddenly the world learns, with some astonishment, that Italy has an Asiatic policy, that the occupation of Cyrenaica is only a step toward claims on the other shore of the Mediterranean, in which the occupation of Rhodes is but a link. And so the great powers turn from the Balkans to Asia Minor, and the fate of the Sultan's eastern dominions hangs so obviously in the balance that the statesmanship of Rome can find no better formula for the occasion than, 'Let us delay 'the divide' as long as possible,' which, in the case of Rome means, 'until we are in a better position to insist on our share.'

There is no need for the English suffragists to go broke. A picture of Mrs. Pankhurst in the act of making jelly and putting up preserves would prove to be one of the best sellers ever put on the market.

Arkansas has had four governors since the first of the year. It might have had five if the remaining citizen hadn't refused to give up his summer's fishing.

A Southern woman has been discovered who sleeps all day that she may nag her husband at night. Here is a pointer for the English suffragists.

If there is anything in a name it will be well for President Huerta to observe the forms of politeness in his communications with Secretary O'Shaughnessy.

Doubtless when the time comes Secretary Bryan will deal very severely with Huerta and Castro. They are keeping him from his lecture engagements.

The eugenics movement, if successful, will bring about one result anyway. It will add a doctor's fee to the price of the marriage license.

Cipriano Castro is called a peon. But he has been called so many other things that probably he won't mind it much.

A dispatch says that Texas has fined the Standard Oil company $500,000. Nothing is said, however, about its collection.

International law prevents President Wilson from sending arms into Mexico. But John Lind has only one.

As the days grow shorter, so is the man whose wife and three daughters are at a summer resort.

Apparently Colonel Mulhall won't even have a chance to go on the vaudeville stage.

Hereafter the Washington lobby, if it can't be good, will at least try to be careful.

WHITLOCK WILL BE BELGIUM MINISTER

Brand Whitlock.

Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo is said to be slated for the post of minister to Belgium. President Wilson probably will send his nomination to the senate within a few days. Mr. Whitlock is expected to be the only Ohioan to land an important diplomatic post abroad.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

TEACHING TRUTH WITH A CLUB.

The Optimist club of Sunshine Corners was about to hold its monthly meeting. On taking the chair President Uplift Jenkins said:

"Since our last meeting I am pleased to report that only seven members have been fined—four for having grousches, two for complaining about the weather and one for running down the town. This shows improvement and reveals a decreasing per capita of faultfinding. There remain a few of us who indulge in the needless, weakening and time wasting habit of peevishness about the inevitable and some others who grow morbid in regretting things that are over and can't be helped. The only good in regret is in making us resolve not to commit the same foolishness again. When it goes beyond the point of self amendment it becomes negative and evil. As for becoming peevish at things beyond our control, that has no redeeming feature. It might do for children, but is beneath a grownup optimist.

"Outside of these relics of an age of negation and barbarism everything is moving in the right direction. I am rejoiced to state that Brother Henry Jones has added a new coat of paint to his house; that owing to our crusade for civic improvement the duns have been removed from back yards and back alleys, the streets are cleaner than before, the store fronts are kept in more attractive condition, unsightly outshouses have been removed or covered with vines, lawns are beautified and Sunshine Corners is living up to its name. Because of our judicious advertising of the town and the favorable reputation already made one new store is already being erected and a new factory is promised in the near future. [Applause.] Because of the cheerful state of our minds health is on the increase, and on account of the interest in public betterment private feuds and backbiting are on the wane.

"In the old days, as you know, this little city was called Jumptown, and some wag remarked that it was so named because it was the jumping place. Optimism transformed it to Sunshine Corners. Without patting ourselves on the back I only wish that the whole world could have some of the same medicine. [Applause.] I propose that we send abroad the glad tidings. Optimism, which is but another name for faith, hope and love, may not constitute the nectar of the gods, but it is at least the food and drink of men who do things." [Long continued applause.]

Minister and Moving Pictures.

M. Cheron, French minister of labor, was sitting in the darkness of a cinema show watching the pictures of an official reception. On the film appeared M. Cheron himself in the procession. M. Cheron's neighbor in the house remarked to him upon the extraordinary likeness between him and the gentleman on the film. He added, "The only difference between you, monsieur, and the real M. Cheron seems to be that you and I are mere plain bourgeois, whereas, of course, M. Cheron, the minister, is one of our greatest geniuses."

The labor minister could not resist it. He took his card and handed it silently to his neighbor. The neighbor returned his own card, and on it, M. Cheron managed by the dim light to read the name of M. Rene Bessard, who was a predecessor of M. Cheron's in a previous cabinet.

Stable Cut Out of Rock.

Sufficiently grand, gloomy and substantial for the housing of some wild and cruel steed of a saturnaline mythology is a strange stable at Kinver, near Stourbridge, England. The stable has been cut from the Holy Austin rocks, but instead of serving as the home of some particularly powerful and malicious beast it is the abode of a perfectly agreeable pony. In addition to being one of the strangest stables in the world it is, according to the Bystander, the smallest one in England. Although the pony is not large for his kind, he finds his stony cell a pretty tight fit.

The area of high atmospheric pressure over eastern Canada is drifting slowly eastward. Its influence is felt throughout the northeastern states, and as far west as the upper Mississippi valley. Throughout this region northeasterly winds, with moderate temperatures prevail. It is cloudy in the upper lake region and upper Mississippi valley, where the winds have passed over the lakes. There have been showers and thunderstorms around the margin of this area of high barometer, in the middle Atlantic states, Ohio valley, upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys. A thunderstorm in Chicago was attended by 1.02 inches of rainfall.

Back to Farm for Jacob Rils. Worcester, Mass.—A 200-acre farm in the eastern part of the town of Barre, considered the finest farm land in Worcester county, has been purchased by Jacob Rils of New York, and he will make his home there. The farm has a beautiful old colonial house, two barns, a carriage house and a garage.

Girls Give Skin. Ann Arbor, Mich.—Fourteen girls have given to Miss Clara Allen of Milan an average of 75 pieces of skin. As a result the young woman probably will recover. A bottle of kerosene which she held over a stove last July exploded. Almost all the skin was burned off her breast.

First American Cigar Factory. The first American cigar factory was established in Connecticut in 1810. By 1825 there were numerous small cigar factories in Connecticut, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Maryland and Virginia. The first tax levied on domestic cigars and other tobacco products was laid under the internal revenue law of 1862, which was a war revenue measure.

Progress on Sewers: Contractor Cayll of Waukesha has completed sewer work in Sewer Districts No. 3 and No. 14, and is now digging trenches in District No. 15, where the major part of the work is to be done. As the excavation is gravel progress will be comparatively slow.

All Had Too Much: Four men who were given the opportunity to awaken from their spirituous excess at the police station last night admitted to Judge E. J. Murphy this morning that they had absorbed too much and given their punishment. George Currier and Harry Osmond, who were strangers to the court got four days in jail for the want of fines of $2 and costs. Charles Driscoll was given eight days, and Jack Cronin was dismissed on his taking the pledge for a year.

EFFECT COMPROMISE WITH U. S. ENGINEER

MAYOR AND CITY ENGINEER SECURE A REDUCTION IN CLEARANCES.

CHANGE TO BE SLIGHT

City Can Adjust Matters With Little Difficulty—Construction Will Proceed.

Compromise of a character satisfactory to both the city and Major Charles Keller, United States district engineer at Rock Island, was effected at a conference between the latter and Mayor Fathers and City Engineer Kerch at the office of Major Keller yesterday morning. Whereas he first asked for a clearance under the easternmost arch of 12 and two-tenths feet, he consented to accept and recommend plans to the war department providing for a clearance of 16 1/2 feet, seven-tenths of a foot more than the present plans provide for.

The city can accommodate itself to the slight change in the plans with very little inconvenience, said City Engineer Kerch this morning, and it will not discommode the property at either end except that which is already low. The change will make no difference at the abutments. The two piers adjacent to the rise will be the only ones to be affected. The footings of these will have to be made slightly higher. The city could have obtained the original recommendations of Major Keller but it would have made necessary a grade of over two per cent and given a decided arch to the bridge, objectionable on a structure that has to be used by interurban and street cars and heavy teaming traffic.

Major Keller made plain that it was not his intention to put the city to any more inconvenience than was necessary. When shown the diagrams prepared by City Engineer Kerch he admitted that to raise the bridge two feet and more would work a hardship. He will recommend the plans of the bridge as modified and approved by the war department. The major returned Saturday night from a trip to New York where he had been summoned by the secretary of war, Major Fathers and City Engineer Kerch, to discuss with him when he came down to his office Monday morning and concluded their business after a very brief interview. The contractors are perfectly willing to acquiesce with the change in the plans which will not alter their work in the least. Although it calls for a slightly increased amount of concrete there is a provision in the contract covering such a contingency.

LOCAL MAN SUFFERS WITH PAINFUL BURNS

Stanley Brown Has Hands and Neck Blistered While Fighting Fire Which Damaged His Auto.

According to the Beloit Free Press, Stanley Brown is nursing some painful burns about the back of his neck and on his hands today while his runabout is in Beedle's garage for repairs as the result of a fire at night Sunday on West Grand avenue near the library when gasoline ran down into the tail light and ignited while he was filling the tank. It seems that Mr. Brown had been sitting in the street at that point some time Saturday night for want of gasoline and left the tail light of the machine burning all night. Sunday morning when George Beedle of the Beedle garage brought him some gasoline in answer to his summons, Brown neglected the burning tail light with the result that an ignition followed in which both his own car and that of Mr. Beedle standing near caught fire. The fire on Mr. Beedle's car was put out easily but the fire department had to be called to kill the flames enveloping Brown's car with a chemical. Patches of the top and back were burned out, constituting most of the damage.

Both of Mr. Brown's hands and the back of his neck were severely burned. Mr. Beedle rushed him to the Emergency hospital in an automobile at once and his burns were dressed. Mr. Beedle suffered no injury what so ever and his car escaped undamaged. It had caught fire from the spread of some of the liquid following the ignition in Brown's car.

BELOIT'S BIG FAIR IS HELD NEXT WEEK

Exceptional Display of Livestock and Agricultural Products Promised—Fine Racing Program.

What is advertised as Beloit's greatest fair in the history of the city, will open on the fair grounds, South Beloit, Illinois, August 26th. More than $5,000 in purses and amusements have been provided. There will be a complete exposition of livestock including dairy products, dairy machinery, grains, fruits and grasses, farm machinery and implements, honey, silage and round farm architecture, concrete exhibit, etc.

The Alpha Sextette, a singing organization of excellence, will give a repertoire running from "Flooding Down the River" to "The Sextette From Lucia," is announced for an appearance at the Apollo Theatre, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, matinee and evening, August 21st, 22nd and 23rd.

Sept. 2, 3, 4, 5, will see the Great Jefferson Co. Fair in full swing. The prospect was never better. A large exhibit of stock of all kinds, and with $40,000.00 hung up in purses is assurance that there will be a large and fast class of horses entered for the races.

For the first time in its history there will be Night Fair on the grounds which will be lighted with thousands of electric lights, the Free Attractions will be put on, after which there will be a Grand Display of Fireworks.

The management are busy looking after the details of the different departments and with good weather can not help but be assured of success.

The Alpha Sextette which renders songs ranging from rag time to grand opera, will be seen at the Apollo Theatre on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week, matinee and evening. This feature attraction carries special scenery of an elaborate nature and the vocalists include some of the best American talent.

SOUTH FOOT-BRIDGE OPENED TO TRAVEL

Walk on North Side of Old Bridge Closed This Morning—Poles Soon Removed.

Before nine o'clock this morning the temporary foot-bridge on the south side of the old Milwaukee street bridge was opened to pedestrians and the same time the walk on the north side of the old bridge was closed. In consequence the stores on the south side of Milwaukee street between the river and Main and River streets are not getting the fronting on the course of travel instead of being on a blind alley. The situation is reversed for the business places on the north side, but will not continue long as another foot-bridge will be put in there at once.

This morning had moved clear to the east bank of the stream and will work its way back to the best bank as it drives piles for the foot-bridge. The temporary sheet piling for the foot-bridge in which the abutment will be cast and operate the clam-shell dredges. Several men are already at work at this point.

HOLD LAST SERVICE FOR THE LAMENTED JUDGE JOHN W. SALE

Remains Laid at Rest in Oak Hill Cemetery This Afternoon—Rock County Bar Honors Departed.

With all the reverence and honors that the rites of the church and the love and devotion of family and friends could bestow, last services were held this afternoon for the lamented Judge John W. Sale at his late home, 121 Wisconsin street. The entire city paid in its sincere and quiet manner, tribute to the departed Rock county jurist, for during the funeral, from three to four o'clock, most of the business places of Janesville were closed.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock members of the Rock County Bar Association to the number of thirty and more formed in line at the court house and marched in a body to the late home of Judge Sale to attend the services conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the Congregational church. The remains lay in state in the hall where all who attended were permitted to take their last look at the familiar and kindly features. The house could not contain all who came to pay their last tribute and seats were provided on the porch and lawn for those who could not be accommodated indoors.

Those who were honored with positions as pall bearers, all attorneys and clerks of the county, were Judge George Grimm, George C. Sutherland, M. O. Monat, John M. Whitehead, A. E. Matheson, L. C. Root of Beloit and R. M. Richmond of Evansville for years and had traveled for long distances. Practically every attorney in the county was there. Those from outside of Janesville were: Burr W. Jones of Madison, Assessor C. E. Rosa of Beloit, Judge John C. Clark of this city, Fred Jones of Evansville, E. M. Ladd of Edgerton, John Rodd, J. B. Dow, and Owen Elliland of Beloit.

The number of county board members attending, among them Chairman A. C. Gray of Evansville.

Many people from out of the city were present at the funeral, some of them aged men who had not been in Janesville for years and had traveled for long distances.

Even the workmen on the bridge few of whom were known to the judge, showed their respect, and the whole day ceased its operations during the hour of the funeral.

FORTUNES MADE IN SEAWEED

Turned Into Food, Clothes, Boots, Medicine, Furniture, Fertilizer and Many Other Articles.

Seaweed is rapidly establishing a claim as the greatest friend of man, and many new uses are being discovered for it in foreign countries.

If the experience of the Japanese and the dwellers on the western shores of Norway, Scotland and Ireland is to be accepted, there are huge fortunes to be made from seaweed. The Japanese, including the Formosans, employ some 600,000 persons in the seaweed industries. These are mainly engaged in preparing edible products.

China alone consumes $600,000 worth of the gelatinous articles every year.

The edible seaweeds of Great Britain and Ireland are advancing in popularity even among London epicures.

Served with roast meats they are said to be extremely palatable.

The London industry which employs Devonshire and Japanese seaweed in the manufacture of such diverse objects as cloth, stout shoes, golf balls, policemen's boots, picture frames, marbled floors and electric switchboards, by no means monopolizes its uses.

In Cornwall seaweed is used as a fertilizer for the land, in France it finds utility as a stiffener for mattresses and a size for straw hats.

The native fishermen of South Australia make ropes and fishing nets from local varieties.

Iodine, a chemical of great medicinal value, claims seaweed as its principal source. The production of "kelp," or burned seaweed, which is the first stage in its preparation, is an industry that is rapidly developing in northwestern Europe. The hardy kelp burners of the Hebrides and Irish coast have now strong rivals in Scandinavia, and in one Norwegian province at least the revenue from this work already exceeds that derived from fishing and agriculture.

In America it has been found to be a valuable source of potash, greatly needed as a fertilizer.

OUR PROUD AMERICAN PEERESSES MAY BECOME WAITRESSES TO THE KING! GEORGE V HAS IN MIND REVIVAL OF OLD CUSTOMS

London.—King George V of England and his wife are said to be planning to deal a cruel blow to America peeresses. The American women who marry English titles are altogether too frivolous and ultra-modern. Think their royal highnesses. So they have been very active thinking up means of discouraging lively American peeresses from marrying English dukes and earls.

The plan that they are said to have hit upon is to restore medieval court ceremonies. Up-to-date Yankee girls never could stand this. They love titles and the social prestige titles bring, but the idea of taking part in the barbarous court ceremonies of the Middle Ages does not appeal to them at all.

For instance, how could the proud Vidian Gould, who is now Lady Decies, endure having to stand ready to hand the Queen her clothes when the latter arises on a cold winter morning, to taste her food before it is sent to the royal table, to be a waitress to her highness at dinner, or possibly sit under the table with the crumbs and the bones while the Queen munches her lobster salad and chicken à la king?

That's the way things went in the Middle Ages, and King George has a notion it would be a pretty good way for things to go now. Out with these moderns and all their foolish notions!

In the good old days a "whipping boy" was kept for each of the younger boys in the royal family. When the Prince of Wales ate green apples contrary to his parents' wishes or otherwise misbehaved himself, the whipping to which his conduct entitled him would be visited upon the son of a peer. It has been suggested that in case old customs are all revived the punishment and usual position of whipping boy be tended to one of the two sons of the Duchess of Marlborough.

On great public occasions some proud peeress performed the office of "Herbstrawer" to the Queen. It was her job to strew aromatic herbs to protect Her Majesty from the unpleasant odor of the great unwashed. Why, it has been asked, should not the dainty Lady Ashburton, who was formerly Miss Frances Donnelly of New York, be given this useful and dignified position?

Of course, if the old ceremonies are revived, others beside American peeresses will get the chance to take part in them. For instance, there was the "King's Crowder," whose business it was to crow like a rooster by the King's bedside at every hour of the night during Lent. Another functionary known as "the King's Head Holder," had the rare privilege of holding the king's head when the latter was seasick. These positions, of course, could hardly be given to peeresses.

Automobiles Interest Colleges.

A majority of the larger colleges have come to realize the increasing magnitude of the automobile industry, several of them having already established a department of automobile engineering. Those which have not established a department of this kind have made provision in many cases for giving instructions to students in engineering problems connected with the automobile. Even the smaller colleges have on file data pertaining to the motor car and a catalogue of practically every motor car concern in this country for reference purposes.

"Cycle Car" the Latest.

The "cycle car," cross between a motor car and a motorcycle, has been brought out by English motor car manufacturers to compete with the low priced cars from the United States, according to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The machine is made with either three or four wheels, has an engine of from three to ten horse power and is being placed on the market at prices ranging from $400 to $700. It may invade the American market.

When Lamps Burn Yellow.

If the acetylene lamps burn with a yellowish tinge it is probable that there is a leak in the pipe line and that air is mixed with the gas. Examine the connections of the line and see that they are tight—but don't do it with a match. Use soapy water, applied to the joints while looking for bubbles, or any change in the character of the flame.

Clean Dust Pan.

Do not neglect to clean the dust pan under the engine. It is very likely to contain an accumulation of gasoline which is readily ignited, and therefore a constant source of danger from fire.

What He Did.

A story of Scotch honesty comes from Dundee. A small boy had taken the prize for an exceptionally well drawn map. After the examination the teacher, a little doubtful, asked the lad:

"Who helped you with this map, James?"

"Nobody, sir."

"Come now, tell me the truth. Didn't your brother help you?"

"No, sir. He did it all."—Los Angeles Herald.

THEY'LL SEE A LOT OF THE BIG WORLD FROM THEIR LITTLE CANOE ON SIX THOUSAND-MILE JOURNEY.

Mr. and Mrs. Green on the Hudson.

Waterford, N. Y.—Walter Hayward Green and his wife of New York city, who are intent upon making a 6,000-mile trip in their eighteen-foot canvas covered canoe, Whitewater, have passed through here on the first leg of their journey. They will go through the Erie Canal to Buffalo, to Ashtabula on Lake Erie, down the Beaver Canal to Rochester, Pa., up the Ohio river to Pittsburgh, thence to Cairo, Ill., up to St. Louis, down to New Orleans, along the Gulf to St. James City, Fla., across the Everglades to Palm Beach, through the Indian and St. Johns Rivers, up the Atlantic Seaboard Canal and Athensville Sound, up the Potomac to Washington, through the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal to the Delaware River and through the Raritan Canal home.

"We expect to make twenty miles a day and to camp at night," Mr. Green explained to a reporter. "We don't anticipate any trouble, as our canoe was specially built for heavy work. We will explore the Wyandotte Cave in Indiana, which is almost as large as the Mammoth Cave and will spend some time on the famous Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee. We will attend the Deep Waterways convention in Peoria, Ill. And down in the Louisiana bayous we will try hunting alligators."

Mrs. Green, who was Miss Hallie Coyne, a member of an old Staten Island family, is an expert paddler and swimmer. Mr. Green is a magazine writer.

The Whitewater carries blankets, clothing, tent, cooking outfit and supplies, cameras and a small dark room.

SOCIETY QUEENS OF BRAZIL, IND., START A BRAND NEW FASHION

Brazil, Ind.—The newest fashion among the social queens of Brazil is the day after a party in which ten of the sweet young things of Brazil participated.

They went down to the creek to bathe. Prior to bathing, they filled the willows on the sylvan banks with diaphanous lingerie and incidentally clothes. Then they proceeded to have a perfectly lovely time in the gurgling brook.

Meanwhile some foul fiends crept up to the willows and departed, taking with them the shoes and the hats and the stockings and the—well, they took everything.

When the girls came out of the water they didn't come out. They stayed in until the shades of night descended mercifully. Then, looking like a bevy of dejected and dripping "September Morns," they crept home.

Next day each fair bather received a nobby modish barrel of the latest cut and design with the compliments of some person.

The present possessors of the latest thing in midsummer garments would like to know just who it is that has their lingerie and other things. Some of the girls have their suspicions.

THE ALPHA SEXTETTE:

The Alpha Sextette is one of the best known singing organizations on the vaudeville stage. Both classical and popular selections are offered by clever vocalists in scenic surroundings that are sure to win approval. Willard Jarvis, who is sponsor of this delightful vaudeville number, is quite prominent in national musical circles, and has gotten together a corps of singers who represent the choicest talent. The solo work has won high praise from the best critics and the ensembled numbers have been widely commended for both harmony and artistic presentation. The repertoire is the result of a knowledge of the public taste which comes from ten years experience on the part of Mr. Jarvis. Each selection has been chosen because of its appeal to the public and because it brings out some phase of musical excellence.

HAVE YOU EVER SEEN MISS "SEPTEMBER MORN" AT BREAKFAST? HERE SHE IS WITH LITTLE "JULY DAWN" AND "AUGUST SUNSET"

The question of clothing is one with which the members of the Repose Nature Cure and Country club of Hastings, England, concern themselves very little if at all. Judging from the photograph, this secluded retreat placed on an elevation of 500 feet in St. Helen's park, is the original abode of the diaphanous gown and the famous "September Morn," both of which have been greatly tabooed in numerous localities where abbreviated clothing is not appreciated; but here the gown arouses no protest and "September Morn" produces no shock.

The Repose club is made up of a membership of men and women who are suffering from various ailments which Nature alone has the power of curing, and "Old Sol" is called upon for his healing influence. The members dwell in cottages whose sides are all windows and the place is amply supplied with lounging chairs and sheltered boxes for sun bathers. Separate inclosures are provided for the male members as well as for families.

USED THE MOTOR FOR PUMP

Delivery Wagon Kept a Cellar Dry During Flood in Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania.

Each spring the retail district of Wilkesbarre, Pa., prepares for the annual flood by removing all goods from cellars to upper floors. Then the merchants sit down and wait patiently for the waters to come and recede. This year a large department store failed to join in the general transfer, but invested in a simple centrifugal pump. The flood came according to schedule. As soon as the water began to ooze into the cellar the store force drove its motor delivery wagon to the front of the store, jacked up one rear wheel and connected it with the pump by a belt. Then they started the motor.

There were a few moments of anxiety before the car showed its ability to pump the water out faster than the flood seeped it in. But doubt vanished before the demonstration had been at work a half hour. The crest of the flood passed, leaving the cellar still dry. And the waters receded without a cent of damage being done. A year ago it had cost the store $800 to transfer the goods and have the cellar pumped out after the flood was over. The members of the firm say that their motor easily paid for itself in the flood service alone.

Helpful When Motoring.

One often wishes to carry a dress hat when taking a long motoring trip. How to do this without a large hat box is often a problem. Make a large square bag out of paper muslin the color of the lining of your auto, into this put your hat, and pin it over your head to the lining of the auto by all four corners. In this way the hat will ride easily, will not crush or catch the dust and is out of the way, besides being out of sight of passers-by.

There is no better way to dispose of your house or other property as through the medium of the want columns.

ALL MATTER OF HEAT

MANUFACTURER SHOWS ERROR IN HORSE-POWER RATING.

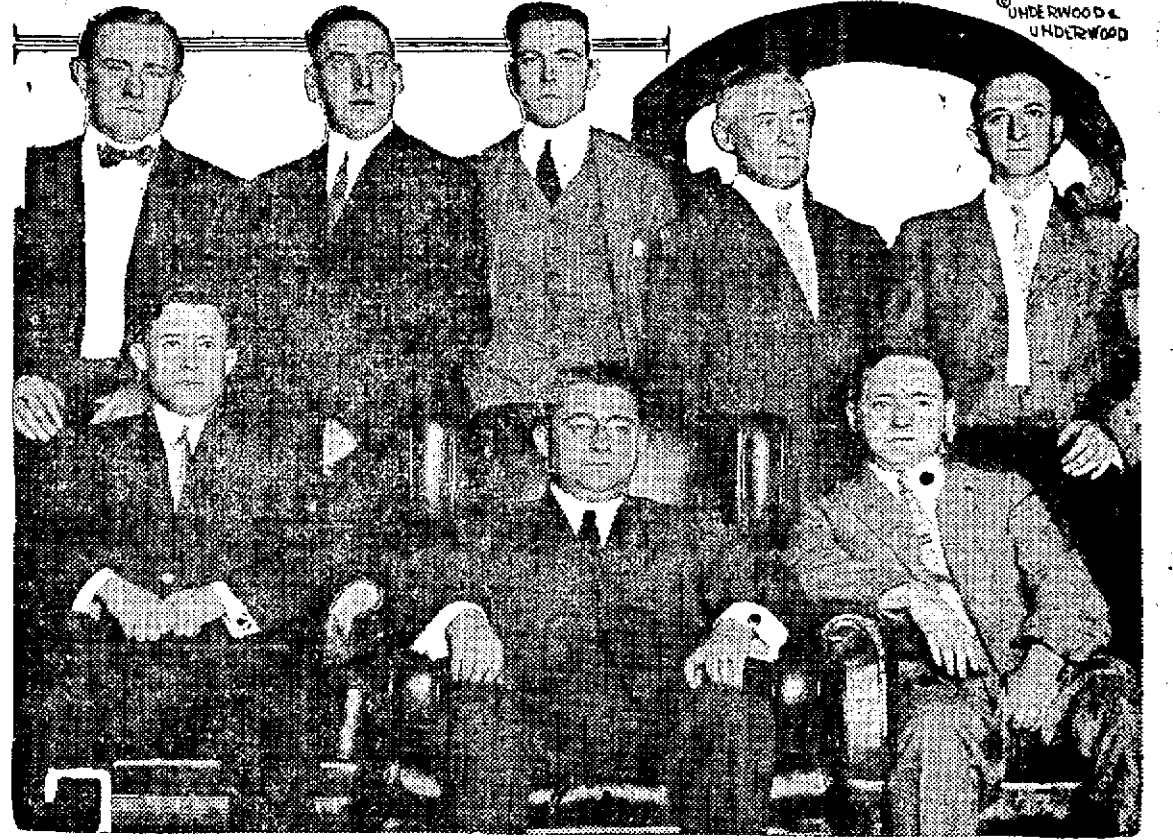

Scientific Building Has Proved That Is Wrong—Practical Autoists Will Realize Truth of This.

"The time is past," said T. E. Jarrard, vice-president of one of the New York automobile companies, "when either the owner, dealer, or manufacturer placed his confidence in the A. L. A. M. formula for calculating horse power. The old rule was based on cylinder dimensions only, and the folly of this rule is more evident now than ever before when one stops to consider that even two motors exactly the same size, using different grades of gasoline could not possibly develop the same power. It is just as nonsensical to insist that all motors of equal piston displacement are equally powerful, as to maintain that all twenty-four-year-old men, six feet tall, and weighing 180 pounds can do the same amount of work in the same length of time.

"The amount of power in a motor is inversely reciprocal with the heat evolved. In other words, the energy in the gasoline can either be converted into power that goes out through the rear axle or heat that is transmitted through radiation or shot out of the muffler. The more heat the less power. The more heat, the more gasoline and oil. The less heat, more power and less fuel. The more power, less gear shifting. To keep the motor cool we go to such extremes as T-Head separated, cylinders with the hot exhaust valve entirely isolated from the inlet valve. This not only gives a greater area for water circulation, but a greater area for actual radiation from the casting. In addition the better a motor is lubricated the more power it will develop because oiling does away with friction and friction, of course, creates heat.

"There are two things that heat up a motor—the hot explosive gases themselves, and the friction of the piston in the cylinder. Were you to run your motor without any oil you would find that it would heat up and the pistons would stick. The hollow crank shaft oiling system is said to be the extreme in lubricating. The faster you can get water through your cylinder back into the radiator, the less heat. The secret of building a powerful motor lies in the successful reduction of the thermal unit. Our horse-power is not figured by the A. L. A. M. formula. Every motor is tested on a dynamometer. Since so many motors develop more power than this formula credits them with, I cannot understand why the Society of Automobile Engineers still clings to this ancient idea, but I suppose, the future will take care of this."

RED LARGE PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

Festered and Came to Head. Scratching Made Sores. Caused Disfigurement. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Face Now Clear.

1413 E. Genesee Ave., Saginaw, Mich. — "Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me of a very bad disease of the face without leaving a scar. Pimples broke out all over my face, red and large. They festered and came to a head. They itched and burned and caused me to scratch them and make sores. They said they were warts. At night I was restless from itching. When the barber would shave my face would bleed terribly. Then sores would form afterwards, then they would drop off and the so-called seed warts would come back again. They were on my face for about nine months and the trouble caused disfigurement while it lasted.

"One day I read in the paper of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I received a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it was so much value to me that I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment at the drug store. In about ten days my face began to heal up. I kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a very short time after the seed warts had all fallen off the red spots where they were vanished also. My face is now clear of the warts and not a scar is left." (Signed) LeRoy C. O'Brien, May 12, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c, and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Dinner Stories

Uncle Ephraim, an ex-slave and local character in a southern Ohio town, has a fondness for ham.

ham strung over his shoulder, he was accosted by a policeman.

"The official of the law asked Eph what he was doing and Eph, in great astonishment, asked:

"Who put dat ham on my back?"

Senator William H. Thompson, the "boy senator" from Kansas, served a long term as judge in his native state before assuming the toga.

Kansas is a prohibition state and there was a great deal of trouble with what is known as the "bootleggers" in that section; that is, men who carried whisky around for illegal sale in the legs of their boots or otherwise concealed.

A great many of these cases came before Thompson and he frequently paroled the offender. This made for him several enemies, one of whom told on the senator a story which states that one day, as Thompson was coming out of the courtroom, he bumped into a big, burly colored man standing in a dark part of the hall.

"I beg yer pardon, judge," exclaimed the son of Ham, bowing profusely.

"I cannot grant you a pardon," Thompson is reported to have replied, "But I will give you a parole."

"MY BABY HAD BRONCHITIS BUT Father John's Medicine cured it," says Wm. P. Maguire, of Long Island City, N. Y.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

I sit me down in the inglenook with a rattling pipe and a corking book of the rattling Rex Beach kind, and I do not care what the statesmen do, what plans they form or what routes pursue, to all of their tricks I'm blind. At the tariff grind they may break their backs, they may strait themselves at the income tax as often they have before, I'm reading now of a man who goes on a rampage but through Alaska snow with a gun and a pair of sore, I'm reading now the heroic tale of mighty men in the arctic gale—manning their fearful trips, I'm all worked up over these mad adventures and I do not care what the jingling Japs may do with their shabby stiffs, I'm tired of facts, though they're Vital Things, I'm tired of measures that congress springs, I'm tired of the White House news, it's good to roam in the desert place with a husky team and a frozen face, and a pair of willow shoes, it's good to travel with Rex E. Beach away from the snow reach of the far Alaska strand, to leave awhile, by the fiction road the daily grind and the heavy load, and this sad fact ridden kind.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

STIMULANTS.

(By Howard L. Rahn.)

A STIMULANT is something which people take to increase their volage. Some people have so little natural volage that they have to fire up on stimulants about five nights a week, after which they are able to walk home with the aid of a picket fence and nine telephone poles.

There are several kinds of stimulants, all of which serve a useful purpose. For instance, the old-fashioned stimulant known as a s a s a d spanking has kept more boys out of the reform school than all the moral precepts of the ages. The moral precept is all right, but it does not seem to reach the spot with so much thoroughness as a conscientious spanking mixed with short, bristling words of admonition. Many a boy has been stimulated into eschewing profanity after a determined mother has rinsed out his mouth with wood ashes and appealed to his manhood with the limb of a willow tree.

Tobacco, tea, coffee and malt extract are mild stimulants which are used with great freedom by doctors who point out their incalculable qualities and urge their patients to go at once to a diet of malted milk tablets and peanut butter. It is a touching sight to see a doctor with the cigarette habit advising some old lady to cut out Oolong tea and build up her system with two pints of hot water at each meal. Nevertheless, it is a recognized fact that interrupted contact with a cob pipe and coffee made in a fly bucket has cut off thousands of people in their 103d year and caused the relatives to ask for that familiar hymn, "I Would Not Live Alway." Nearly all stimulants have the faculty of giving out a critical structure and demanding more rope. Where one man limits himself to three cigars a day, a thousand make way with twenty and top off with four pipes before retiring. When the family physician feeds morphine the sciatic rheumatism, the patient usually recovers just in time to invest in a hypodermic needle. The boy who goes the beer route is lucky if he doesn't wind up with a morphine extract. Stimulants never made a clear head and a clean eye or a happy marriage or a captain of industry, and the more they are abused the harder they sting.

HOW THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had numb spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had displacement. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines in the world. I tried doctor's medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R. F. D. No. 3, Utica, Ohio.

Another Case.
Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for ten years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.

"Say!" he cried. "Look here! You don't quite get the humor of that. Why, McCarthy loves the name of Warford about the way a yellow dog loves a tin can to his tail."
"We'll call on him, just the same," insisted Darrow.
"I'm game," said Jack, "but I can tell you the answer right now. No need to walk to the Atlas Building."
"I have a notion the Atlas Building is going to be a mighty interesting place," said Darrow.
They debouched on the street. The air was soft and golden; the sun warm with the Indian summer. The clock on the Metropolitan tower was booming nine. As the two set out at a slow saunter down the backwater of the side street, Darrow explained a little further.
"Jack," said he abruptly, "I'll tell you what I think—or imagine. I believe last night's phenomena were controlled, not fortuitous or the result of natural forces. In other words, some man turned off the juice in this city; and turned it on again. How he did it, I do not know; but he did it very completely. It was not a question of wiring alone. Even dry-cell batteries were affected. Now, I can think of only one broad general principle by which he could accomplish that result. Just what means he took to apply the principle is beyond my knowledge. But if I am correct in my supposition, there occurs to me no reason why he should not go a step or so farther."
"I don't believe I follow," said Jack contritely.
"What I'm driving at is this," said Darrow; "this is not the end of the circus by any means. We're going to see a lot of funny things—if my guess is anywhere near right."

CHAPTER VI.

The Wrath to Come.

"Did you ever meet McCarthy?" asked Darrow, as the elevator of the Atlas sprang upward.
"Never."
"Well, no matter what he says or does, I want you to say nothing—nothing."
"Correct," said Jack. "I'll downcharge."
"That's right," Darrow approved. "First of all, wait outside until I call you."
McCarthy was already at his desk, and in evil humor. When Darrow entered, he merely looked up and growled.
"Good morning," Darrow greeted him easily. "Any wireless this morning?"
McCarthy threw back his heavy head.
"That damn operator's been leaking!" he cried.
"So there are wireless," observed Darrow. "No, your operator didn't leak. Who is he?"
"If he didn't leak, what did you say that for?"
"I'm a good guesser," replied Darrow enigmatically. "They say anything about a 'sign' being sent, and such talk."
"You've been gettin' the dope yourself out of the air," returned McCarthy sullenly.
"Look here, my fat friend," drawled Darrow, his eyes half closing. "I'm getting nothing from anywhere except in my own gray matter. What do your messages have to say?"
"Why should I tell you?"
"Because I'm interested—and because I know who sent 'em."
"So do I," snarled McCarthy, in a gust of temper.
"And I'm beginning to suspect he's a man to look out for. And I doubt if you'll ever find him. Of course, he's responsible for the row last night—as well as for the trouble in the Atlas Building the night before."
"I don't know whether he is or not."
"Oh, yes, you do; and I do; and the wireless man does. We're the only three. The rest of them are still figuring on comets."
"Well?"
"I don't suppose there's any real doubt left in your mind but that this man can turn the juice off again, if he wants to?"
"I don't know as he did it," persisted McCarthy stoutly.
"Now, how long do you suppose you'd last if the public should get on to the fact that this hidden power was going to exert itself again unless you left town?"
A slight moisture bedewed McCarthy's forehead.
"Not all your police, nor all your power could save you, if the general public once became thoroughly convinced that it was to go through another experience like last night's unless it ousted you. Why, a mob of a million men would gather against you in an hour. You see," drawled Percy Darrow, "why you'd better look after that wireless man of yours—and me."
"And you," repeated McCarthy.
"What do you want?"
"I want to see those wireless messages, first of all," said Darrow, reaching out his hand.
McCarthy hesitated; then swiftly thrust forth the flimsies. Darrow, a slight smile curving his full red lips, held them to the light. They read as follows:
"McCarthy: A sign was promised you at six o'clock. It has been sent. Repent and beware! Go while there is yet time."
There were four of these, couched in almost identical language. The fifth and last message was shorter:
"McCarthy: Flee from the wrath to come."
"What," said Darrow, "is to prevent the other operators who must have caught this message from giving it to the public? What, indeed, is to prevent M's appealing direct to the public?"
"I don't know," confessed McCarthy miserably. "Do you?"
"Not at this moment. Will you send for the operator who took these?"
McCarthy snatched down the telephone receiver, through which presently he spoke a message.
"What have you got to be doing with this?" he demanded, after he had hung up the hook.
"I want something," said Percy, "of course."
"Sure," growled McCarthy, once more back on familiar ground, and glad of it. "What is it?"
"I'll tell you when I'm sure whether I can do anything for you in this matter."
"If this fellow didn't leak, how did you know about them wireless?" demanded McCarthy again. "How do you know who's doing this?"
Darrow smiled.
"The man who can control the juice as this man has is a scientific expert with a full scientific equipment. If he communicated at all, it would be by wireless, as that is the easiest way to cover his trail. I remembered your telephone message from the fanatic about sending a 'sign.' Immediately after, the Atlas Building experienced on a small scale what next day the city experienced on a larger scale. It was legitimate inference to connect one with the other. Of course, if our telephone friend was the man, who had brought these things about, he had done it to force you to do what he demanded. But he would lose the effect of his lesson unless you understood his connection with the matter. Hence, I concluded that you must have received messages—by wireless—and that they must have repeated the warning as to a 'sign' being sent. It was very simple."
"You're smart, all right," conceded McCarthy.
After a moment the wireless operator came in.
"Simmons," said McCarthy, "answer this man's questions."
"They will be in regard to these messages," said Darrow. "Where are they from?"
"Somewhere in the one-hundred to two-hundred mile circles, depending on the power of the sending instrument," replied the operator promptly.
"Are you sure?"
"I know my instruments pretty well, and I've had experience enough so I can tell by the sound of the sending about how far off they come from."
"And this was from somewhere about one to two hundred miles away, you think?"
"Yes, sir."
"Do you know whether any other instrument caught this?"
"No, only mine." He was very positive.
"Do you know?"
"Mr. McCarthy had me inquire."
"How do you account for it?"

"I don't know, except that maybe my instrument happened to be just tuned to catch it. That's another reason I know it was from far off. The farther away the sending instrument, the nearer exactly it has to be tuned to the receiving instrument. If it was nearer, 'most anybody'd get it."
Percy Darrow nodded.
"That's all, I guess. No, hold on. Did any of these come between six and eight last evening?"
For the first time the operator smiled.
"No, sir; my instrument was dead." He went out.
"Well?" growled McCarthy.
"I don't know; but I can see more trouble."
"Let him turn off his juice," blustered the boss; "we'll be ready, next time."
Percy Darrow smiled.
"Will you?" he contented himself by saying. Then, after a moment's pause, he added, "I'll agree to stop this fellow if you'll give me an absolutely free hand. I'll even agree to find him."
"What do you want?"
"I want a job, a good engineering-construction job, for a friend of mine."
"What can he do?"
"He can learn. I want a good honest place where he can learn under a good man."
"Who is he?"
"I'll bring him in."
A moment later Jack, in answer to a summons, entered the office.
McCarthy stared at him. "What kind of a job?" he growled.
"Something active and out of doors," Darrow answered for him; "streets, water, engineering."
"It's a holdup," said McCarthy suddenly drawing a tablet toward himself and thrusting the stub of a pencil into his mouth.
"A beneficent and just holdup," added Darrow; "the first of its kind in this city."
McCarthy glared at him malevolently.
"It don't go unless you deliver the goods," he threatened.
"Understood," agreed Darrow.
"What's his name?" demanded McCarthy, withdrawing the pencil stub, and preparing to write.
"His name," answered Darrow, "is John Warford, Junior."
McCarthy started to his feet with a bellow of rage, his face turning purple.
"Of all the infernal—" he roared, and stopped, as though stricken dumb. For two or three words further his mouth and throat went through the motions of speech. Then an expression of mingled fear and astonishment overspread his countenance. He sank back into his chair. Percy Darrow nodded twice and smiled.

CHAPTER VII.

A World of Ghosts.

A deathly stillness had all at once fallen like a blanket, blotting out McCarthy's violent speech. The rattling typewriter in the next room was abruptly stilled. The roar of the city died as a living creature is cut by the sword—all at once, without the transitional running down of most silences. Absolute dense stillness, like that of a sea calm at night, took the place of the customary city noises. In his astonishment McCarthy thrust a heavy inkstand off the edge of his desk. It hit the floor, spilled, rolled away; but noiselessly, as would the inkstand in a moving picture.
To have one's world thus suddenly stricken dumb, to be transported orally from the roar of a city to the peace of a woodland or a becalmed sea is certainly astonishing enough.
But this silence was particularly terrifying to both McCarthy and Jack Warford, though neither would have been able to analyze the reason for its weirdness. For silence is in reality a composite of many lesser noises. In a woodland almost inaudible insects hum, breezes blow, leaves and grasses rustle; at sea the tiny waves lap the sides and equally tiny breaths of air stir the cordage; within the confines of the human shell the mere physical acts of breathing, swallowing, blinking, the mere physical facts of the circulation of the blood, the beating of the heart, produce each its sound.
Even a man totally deaf feels the subtle influence of these latter physical phenomena. And underneath all sound, perceptible alike to those who can hear and those who can not, are the vibrations that accompany every activity of nature as the manifestations of motion or of life. An ordinary deep silence is not so much an absence of sound as an absence of accustomed or loud sound; and in that unusual hush often for the first time a man becomes acutely aware of the singing of the blood in his ears.

But this silence was absolute. All these minor sounds had been eliminated.
For a moment Boss McCarthy stared; then he shoved back his chair with a violent motion, and rose. He was like a shadow on a screen. The flicking from the world of one element of its every-day life had unexpectedly rendered it all phantasmagoric.
As McCarthy shouted, and no sound came; as he moved from behind his desk, and no jar accompanied his heavy footfall, he appeared to lose blood and substance, to become unreal. As no sound issued from his constricted face, so it seemed that no force would follow his blow, were he to deliver one.
He stumbled forward, dazed and groping as though he were in the dark, instead of merely in silence; a striking example in the uncertainty of his movements of how closely our senses depend on one another.
Jack spoke twice, then closed his lips in a grim straight line. He held his elbows close to his sides, and looked ready for anything.
A look of mild triumph illumined Percy Darrow's usually languid countenance. He stepped quickly to the wall, and turned the button of the incandescent globe. The light instantly glowed. At this he nodded twice more. From his pocket he drew a note-book and pencil, wrote in it a few words, and handed it to the dazed and uncertain boss.
